

ELEANOR FAPOHUNDA
COLLOQUIUM SERIES

Childhood Morbidity And Mortality In The Late Roman World

A BIOARCHAEOLOGICAL AND PALEOPATHOLOGICAL PERSPECTIVE

Disease, sickness and death do not occur in a vacuum. Instead, they are intimately intertwined within the cultural framework of a given society. Dr. Brown will discuss his research exploration into the morbidity and mortality of children from the Roman capital city of Sirmium, Serbia, between the first and sixth century.

Presented by Dr. Matthew Brown

*Professor of Sociology and Anthropology
Farmingdale State College*

Tuesday, March 7, 2017
10:50 a.m.-12:05 p.m.
Ward Hall Great Room

Farmingdale
State College

State University of New York

farmingdale.edu

